- If your academic advisors include instructors who do not belong to your major department, write all of their names. When doing so, write the name of the person in charge of research guidance in your official affiliation at the top of the list.
- Even if your academic advisors are instructors who have retired or left Kumamoto University, from a practical standpoint, write their names as if they still belonged to Kumamoto University.
- If all your academic advisors are instructors who have retired or left Kumamoto University, submit your application through an introductory professor (who must be a member of the faculty council of the Graduate School of Medical Sciences) and also record his/her name on the abstract.
